About this toolkit

Women’s Health Goulburn North East (WHGNE) has created this toolkit to support organisations and individuals in the Goulburn Valley and North East Victoria to participate in the 16 Days of Activism Campaign (16 Days Campaign).

This toolkit summarises information about the 16 Days Campaign and provides key messages surrounding the prevention of violence against women (VAW) and gender inequality. It also provides information to learn more about key topics, and examples of action to further engage workplaces and communities in conversations and actions relating to the prevention of violence against women.

What is the 16 days of Activism Campaign?

The 16 Days of Activism (16 Days) is a global campaign dedicated to raising awareness about violence against women and the impact of gender-based violence. The campaign starts on 25 November, the International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women, and concludes on 10 December, International Human Rights Day. These dates were chosen in order to symbolically link violence against women with human rights issues. In particular, this campaign emphasises the fact that violence, in any form, is a violation of human rights.

For more information on the history of the campaign – CLICK HERE

Victoria Against Violence

The Victoria Against Violence campaign is timed to coincide with the 16 Days of Activism Campaign. The State Government’s Victoria Against Violence campaign calls the whole community to action. The State Government encourages every Victorian to play a role in preventing family violence, and calls on communities and organisations across the state for one common purpose – to unite to create a Victoria free from family violence.

Victoria against Violence provides the community with opportunities to promote gender equity, participate in the discussion to prevent gender-based violence and support those who have experienced family and gendered violence.

The State Government calls for everyone to play a role in preventing family and gender violence – individuals, schools, workplaces, churches, sporting clubs and government.

MEN’S VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN IS NOW WIDELY RECOGNISED AS A GLOBAL PROBLEM AND ONE OF THE MOST WIDESPREAD VIOLATIONS OF HUMAN RIGHTS. IN AUSTRALIA, VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN IS A SERIOUS AND WIDESPREAD PROBLEM, WITH ENORMOUS INDIVIDUAL AND COMMUNITY IMPACTS AND SOCIAL COSTS.

The following basic statistics help demonstrate the prevalence and severity of violence against women:

- On average, one woman a week is murdered by her current or former partner, according to the most recent analysis of homicide statistics in Australia.
- One in four Australian women have experienced emotional abuse by a current or former partner.
- Of those women who experience violence, more than half have children in their care.
- One in three Australian women have experienced physical violence, since the age of 15.
- One in five Australian women have experienced sexual violence.
- Women are at least three times more likely than men to experience violence from an intimate partner.
- Violence against women is not limited to the home or intimate relationships. Every year in Australia, more than 300,000 women experience violence – often sexual violence – from someone other than a partner.
- Women are five times more likely than men to require medical attention or hospitalisation as a result of intimate partner violence, and five times more likely to report fearing for their lives.
- Eight out of 10 women aged 18 to 24 were harassed on the street in the past year.

(Our Watch, 2018)
Key terms and definitions

Violence against women is any act of violence that causes, or could cause, physical, sexualised or psychological harm or suffering to women, including threats of harm or coercion, in public, or in private life.

Violence against women includes psychological, economic, emotional and sexualised violence and abuse, and a wide range of controlling, coercive and intimidating behaviours. In Australia, the types of violence are called domestic violence, family violence, intimate partner violence, sexual harassment and sexual assault.

DOMESTIC VIOLENCE:

Refers to acts of violence that occur in domestic settings between two people who are, or were, in an intimate relationship. It includes physical, sexualised, emotional, psychological, religious, technological and financial abuse.

FAMILY VIOLENCE:

Refers not only to violence between intimate partners, but also violence between family members. It includes all the types of coercion and control listed above, and extends to elder abuse and adolescent violence against parents. Family violence includes violent and threatening behaviour, or any other form of behaviour that coerces or controls a family member or causes that family member to be fearful. In Indigenous communities, family violence is often the preferred term as it encapsulates the broader issue of violence within extended families, kinship networks and community relationships, as well as intergenerational violence.

GENDER-BASED VIOLENCE:

Refers to violence that is specifically ‘directed against a woman because she is a woman or that affects women disproportionately’.

INTIMATE PARTNER VIOLENCE:

Refers to any behaviour by a man or a woman in an intimate relationship (including current or past marriages, domestic partnerships, familial relations, or people who share accommodation) that causes physical, sexualised, emotional, psychological, spiritual, technological or financial abuse to those in the relationship. Intimate partner violence is the most common form of violence against women.

16 Days event ideas

- Display information regarding gender inequality and the 16 Days of Activism campaign around your workplace.
- Daily emails to staff in your workplaces providing information and facts regarding gender inequality and the prevention of violence against women. Use the templates provided in this kit.
- Host a guest speaker at a community event or your workplace to discuss gender inequality and the prevention of violence against women.
- Partner with a local school, and ask students what their thoughts regarding gender equality in Australia and/or what it means to be a girl, and what it means to be a boy in Australia – share these thoughts during the 16 Days of Activism.
- Organise a workshop for sporting clubs, exploring ways they can challenge inequality in their club and strive to be more inclusive and respectful. For more information, contact North East Sport.
- Host a morning tea and/or lunch and discuss gender inequality and what we can all do create a more equal and respectful workplace/community.
- Organise a training session for your workplace about Bystander Action. For more information, contact Women’s Health Goulburn North East (WHGNE).
- Partner with a local school, and develop an art competition for local students exploring gender stereotypes and respectful relationships.
- Provide your local paper with a good news story and share what you have done to promote gender equality in your workplace/community.
- Host a movie night exploring traditional masculinity, and what we can do to challenge this stereotype.
- Host a movie night, screening a movie that promotes women’s empowerment and challenges gender norms. For a movie list, refer to Page 7.
- Host a trivia night with the theme of women’s empowerment and gender equality.
- Host a storytelling at your local library promoting gender neutral books.
- Organise a workshop for leadership to explore gender equity and what they can do in their organisation. For more information, contact WHGNE.
- Involve local people in the campaign – and invite them to share what they are doing to promote gender equality and challenge gender norms.
- In partnership with Maternal and Child Health, host an information session on gender neutral toys, and toy marketing.
- Host a workshop for leadership to explore gender equality and what they can do in their organisation.

Reflection and evaluation

When documenting your campaign activities, you might like to consider these questions:

• What went well and not so well with the campaign?
• Did you have SMART (specific, measurable, achievable, relevant, and time-based) goals? Did you reach them?
• How many people did you reach?
• What were your thoughts and feelings about the campaign?
• What were the stories, feedback, thoughts and feelings of people you reached?
• What factors outside your control contributed or detracted from the campaign?
• What would you do differently next time?
• How are we going to celebrate?

16 DAYS OF ACTIVISM AGAINST GENDER-BASED VIOLENCE
WOMEN'S HEALTH GOULBURN NORTH EAST

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

The World Health Organisation (2017) estimates about one in three (35 per cent) of women worldwide have experienced either physical and/or sexual violence in their lifetime, and globally, as many as 38 per cent of murders of women are committed by a male intimate partner. Violence against women is a huge public health problem and a violation of women’s human rights.

10 | 16 DAYS OF ACTIVISM AGAINST GENDER-BASED VIOLENCE
WOMEN’S HEALTH GOULBURN NORTH EAST

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

On average in Australia, one woman a week is murdered by her current or former partner. One in three Australian women have experienced physical violence, since the age of 15. The combined health, administration and social welfare costs of violence against women have been estimated to be $21.7 billion a year (Our Watch, 2018). Police respond to an average of 657 domestic violence matters every day – one every two minutes (ABC News, 2016).

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

Violence against women can include physical, sexualised, emotional, psychological, spiritual, religious, technological and financial abuse. Intimate partner violence is considered a subset of family violence. Behaviour can include limiting access to finances, preventing communication with family and friends, being demeaning and humiliating, making threats to women and their children and acts of physical violence (Australian Institute of Health and Welfare, 2018).

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

Compared with non-Indigenous Australians, Indigenous women experience up to 32 times the rate of hospitalisations from family violence (Australian Institute of Health and Welfare, 2018). Indigenous females are five times more likely to be victims of homicide than non-Indigenous females (ANROWS, 2014). Family violence is not part of traditional Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander culture. It is a crime.

Family violence within Indigenous communities should be understood in the context of colonisation and intergenerational trauma.

Day 15 Sunday 9 December

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

A strong body of research now exists on the drivers of violence against women. Practice and evaluation tells us how to target these drivers to prevent future violence. Research has found that factors associated with gender inequality are the most consistent predictors of violence against women, and explain its gendered patterns (Change the Story, 2015). Levels of violence against women are significantly and consistently higher where there are more defined distinctions between the roles of men and women – for example, where men are assumed to be the primary breadwinner and women responsible for childrearing. Research has consistently found that men who hold traditional views about gender roles and relationships are more likely to perpetrate violence against women (Change the Story, 2015).

KEY MESSAGE FOR THE DAY

Violence against women and their children is preventable.
Day 15 Sunday 9 December

15 DAYS OF ACTIVISM AGAINST GENDER-BASED VIOLENCE
WOMEN’S HEALTH GOULBURN NORTH EAST

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

When we tell our boys that they need to man up, be brave and stop crying, that they throw like a girl or are sissies, we reinforce rigid gender roles. This means boys grow into men who are shamed when they display these traits, demonstrate their vulnerability and ask for help. Research tells us that these comments are bad for men’s health and are linked to the fact that six in the eight suicides that will happen today in Australia will be men.

The same goes for girls. Gender stereotypes are reinforced from a young age, and we see them all around us in films, TV, social media, our workplaces and communities. Let’s change the story. Girls can be whatever they want; some girls like princess outfits in pink, some like playing with trucks and climbing trees. That’s OK. We want our girls to grow into women who don’t have to fight to be respected by their male peers, have every opportunity to recognise their potential, make their own choices and be healthy.

Background Information about the Key Message

Good sexual and reproductive health includes the right to healthy and respectful relationships, accurate information and safe, inclusive health care and services. Women have the right to decide freely on matters related to their sexuality without coercion, discrimination or violence (Women’s Health Victoria, 2018).

Sexual and reproductive violence can include coercive and forced sex and decisions that take away a woman’s right to bodily autonomy, such as refusal to use a condom and tampering with contraception (Women’s Health Victoria, 2018). Family violence can create barriers for women to safely access appropriate sexual health care and fertility control services, including timely access to contraception, sexual health screening and fertility control services, where women have respect, choice and support (Women’s Health Victoria, 2018).

Key Message for the Day

Today, on World AIDS Day, we recognise that women have the right to sexual and reproductive health.
Day 15 Sunday 9 December

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

Today we introduce intersectionality.

Intersectionality considers how people experience multiple and intersecting forms of discrimination and disadvantage. Intersectionality is a way of seeing the dynamics of power and inequality in our society (Multicultural Centre for Women’s Health, 2017).

Many of the ways that we are socially labelled are connected to aspects of our identity such as race, ethnicity, indigeneity, class, gender, ability, sexuality, geography, age, life stage, migration status or religion. An intersectional approach helps us to focus on the intersecting and interlinking forms of discrimination and oppression (Our Watch, 2017).

An intersectional approach is not about arguing for gender OR ‘diversity’. Thinking and acting intersectionally is about including more information. More information about how gender is being expressed and experienced, in our local contexts, by telling a detailed and sometime complex story about discrimination and inequality.

Day 9 Monday 3 December

KEY MESSAGE FOR THE DAY

Today is the International Day for People with a Disability. Nearly one in five women have a disability, and women with disabilities are twice as likely to experience violence.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

Women with disabilities experience violence over longer periods of time, in more settings, from a greater range of offenders, who commit a greater range of offences. For example, when a carer is the offender, they can perpetrate physical, sexual, financial and spiritual violence at home and in an institutional setting.

Day 15 Sunday 9 December

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

The expectations regarding care-giving and domestic chores mean women still perform the majority of these duties, which can substantially limit their participation in the workforce. Statistics show that 95 per cent of primary parental leave (outside of the public sector) is taken by women and women spend almost three times as much time taking care of children each day, compared to men (Australian Human Rights Commission, 2018). Unpaid care work is essential to the social and economic well-being of individuals, families and societies, and substantively contributes to economic activity of the individual and the country as a whole. The monetary value of unpaid care work in Australia has been estimated to be $650.1 billion, the equivalent to 50.6 per cent of GDP (WGEA, 2016).

Women spend 64.4 per cent of their average weekly working time on unpaid care work compared to 36.1 per cent for men (WGEA, 2016). This is a ‘gender time gap in unpaid care work’ of on average two hours and 19 minutes per day, which means that for every hour Australian men commit to unpaid care work, Australian women commit one hour and 48 minutes.

Day 15 Sunday 9 December

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

The Australian workforce is highly segregated by gender, and female-dominated industries – such as aged care, child care and health and community services – have been historically undervalued. Australian women are over-represented as part-time workers in low-paid industries and in insecure work and continue to be under-represented in leadership roles in the private and public sectors (Australian Human Rights Commission, 2018).

In our regions, there are not always the opportunities to access leadership positions. While some of this is gendered, some of it is a result of limited employment options. This means we often lead from where we are, without the title but with all the impact. What does leadership look like when it comes from below, or from the side, in our communities rather than workplaces or in our homes? Women tell us it takes courage, it can be leading from behind rather than in front, it can be about conversations in which we listen more than talk, and it can look like women, younger, older, farmer, lawyer, shop owner, librarian, doctor, politician and ordinary everyday acts. It can be the big vision or doing what you can when you can. It involves head and heart.

Women constitute 42 per cent of all employees, yet make up just a quarter of executives and only 10 per cent of CEOs for large, for-profit companies (McKinsey & Company, 2017). According to WGEA women hold 13.7 per cent of chair positions, 24.9 per cent of directorships, and 29.7 per cent of key management personnel in agency reporting organisations (WGEA, 2018).

Day 15 Sunday 9 December

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

Suicide is now the leading cause of death for Australian men aged 15 to 44. Men make up an average of six out of every eight suicides every single day in Australia. The number of men who die by suicide in Australia every year is nearly double the national road toll (Beyond Blue, 2018).

According to research published by the American Psychological Association “individuals who conformed strongly to masculine norms tended to have poorer mental health and less favourable attitudes toward seeking psychological help” (American Psychological Association, 2016).

Traditional masculine values like toughness and emotional stoicism, along with the desire not to burden others, are barriers that prevent men from seeking help when they’re struggling mentally. And when men spiral into depression, isolation and on to the pathway to suicide, the barriers become even bigger (Beyond Blue, 2016).

KEY MESSAGE FOR THE DAY

Traditional ideas of what it is to be a man, and expectations of how men should behave, can limit and prevent men from expressing emotions and engaging in help seeking behaviours.
Day 15 Sunday 9 December

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

We have a problem with men’s violence in Australia. Ninety-five per cent of physical and sexualised assault in Australia is perpetrated by male offenders.

Statistics show 95 per cent of physical and sexualised assault in Australia against men and women is perpetrated by men (Our Watch, 2018).

Men are more likely to experience violence, with one in two men experiencing violence compared to one in three women (ANROWS, 2017). All violence is wrong. But there are distinct gendered patterns in the perpetration and impact of violence. Men are more likely to experience violence from other men unknown to them and in a public place; women are most likely to know the perpetrator (often their current or a previous partner) and the violence usually takes place in their home (Australian Institute of Health and Welfare, 2018).

SUPPORT FOR GENDER EQUALITY IN RELATIONSHIPS

This attitudinal indicator is published by the VicHealth Indicators Survey 2015. It measures the number of women and men respondents with low support for gender equality in relationships, divided by the number of respondents of the corresponding sex in each LGA. Low support is calculated based on level of agreement with the following two statements: 1. “Men should take control in relationships and be the head of the household.” and 2. “Women prefer a man to be in charge of the relationship.”

Day 15 Sunday 9 December

KEY MESSAGE FOR THE DAY

Sport plays an important role in the culture of our towns and lives. We know that recognition and media coverage of the best athletes shows us what’s possible and inspires us to great heights, but successful women athletes just aren’t receiving the same respect as their male counterparts.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

Towards a Level Playing Field: Sport and Gender in Australia media report confirms that female sport, compared to male sport, receives significantly less coverage on Australian television, despite the ongoing successes and high standard of female sport. Coverage of women in sport made up only 9 per cent of all sports coverage in Australian television news, while 7 per cent of non-news television programming content was devoted to female sport. Male sport, on the other hand, occupied 81 per cent of television news reporting and 86 per cent of non-news programming (Inquiry into Women and Girls in Sport and Active Recreation, 2015). Television news reports about female sports on average were 30 seconds shorter than reports on male sports. The relatively low volume of reporting and comparatively low duration of air time given to female sport, when compared to women’s success and participation rates, implies that male sports are more important and deserving of attention (Inquiry into Women and Girls in Sport and Active Recreation, 2015).

Day 15 Sunday 9 December

KEY MESSAGE FOR THE DAY

It is shocking that one in two women still experience sexual harassment. Today we celebrate contemporary movements to end sexism. Join us in recognising #metoo and calling #TimesUp on sexual harassment.

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

Today we celebrate the global movement to end sexism.

The MeToo Movement is a movement against sexual harassment and assault. #MeToo spread virally in October 2017 as a hashtag used on social media in an attempt to demonstrate the widespread prevalence of sexual assault and harassment, especially in the workplace. It followed soon after the sexual misconduct allegations against Harvey Weinstein.

The phrase “Me too” was tweeted by actor Alyssa Milano around noon on October 15, 2017, and had been used more than 200,000 times by the end of the day, and tweeted more than 500,000 times by October 16. On Facebook, the hashtag was used by more than 4.7 million people in 12 million posts during the first 24 hours.

#TimesUp - Time’s Up is a movement against sexualised harassment and was founded on January 1, 2018, by Hollywood celebrities in response to the Weinstein effect and #MeToo. As of February 2018, it has raised $20 million for its legal defence fund, and gathered more than 200 volunteer lawyers.

Day 16  Monday 10 December

KEY MESSAGE FOR THE DAY

Today we celebrate International Human Rights Day, and ask the question, are we there yet?

International Human Rights Day

BACKGROUND INFORMATION ABOUT THE KEY MESSAGE

As the 16 days comes to an end, we celebrate the anniversary of the adoption of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights in 1948. What do women’s rights have to do with human rights? And how do we know when we have achieved gender equity? In 1995, At the UN Women’s Conference in Beijing, Hillary Rodham Clinton had the following to say about human rights. Wouldn’t it be great if in 20 years’ time, instead of asking, ‘Are we there yet?’, we can ask, ‘Where to next?’

“If there is one message that echoes forth … let it be that human rights are women’s rights and women’s rights are human rights.

“As long as discrimination and inequities remain so commonplace everywhere in the world, as long as girls and women are valued less, fed less, fed last, overworked, underpaid, not schooled, subjected to violence in and outside their homes – the potential of the human family to create a peaceful, prosperous world will not be realized.

“Let -- Let this be our -- and the world’s -- call to action. Let us heed that call so we can create a world in which every woman is treated with respect and dignity, every boy and girl is loved and cared for equally, and every family has the hope of a strong and stable future. That is the work before you.”

– Remarks to the U.N. 4th World Conference on Women Plenary Session
